THE LEGISLATURE.

FRIDAY, February 31.

The Senate this morning adopted a resolu-tion authorizing the appointment of a special committee of five Senators to investigate as to the truthfulness of the announcement made by Colonel John W. Ray at a public meeting in this city held on Sunday last, that money was being used to influence Sen-ators in their votes on the bill for the suppression of intemperance, and that sum of $250,000 has been already raised for that pur-pose. Messrs. Wadge, Hubbard, Neff, Dittemore and Gregg were appointed such committee by the Lieutenant Governor.

A number of favorable reports on Senate bills were concurred in, most of them coming from the Committee on Railroads. The Committee on Printing returned Mr. Beards Committee on Printing returned Mr. Beardsley's bill, [8. 245] providing for letting the public printing out to the lowest bidder, with a recommendation that it pass, with amendments adding after the word "bidder"
the words, "Provided, however, that said Commissioners shall have the right to reject any and all bids; and provided, also, that if all bids are rejected it shall be competent for the Commissioners to make a contract on personal negotiation if such contract can be made on better terms than the lowest and responsible hegoriation it such contract can be made on better terms than the lowest and responsible bid;" authorizing the Commissioners to dis-charge the Superintendent of Printing at pleasure, etc. This bill was made the spe-cial order for Tuesday next at 10½ o'clock

In the House the morning session was occupied with the discussion of the railroad bills, S No. 6 and 115, in which Messrs. Witson of Ripley, Mellette, Woodward, Buskirk, Thayer and others took part, until it was agreed to refer the bills to the Judiciary Committee, who were to invite the railroad committee for consultation in the matter, and to submit their report on Wednesday. Mr. Lenfesty's Jos. Morgan resolution for $409 out of the Governor's contingent fund to procure evidence in the case of the State against James McCollough, in the Benton Circuit Court, charged with the murder of N. C. Morgan, was finally passed the House In the House the morning ses C. Morgan, was finally passed the House of Representatives.

The Speaker lectured against adjournment over Saturday, and constrained the consideration of the Insurance Bill. No. 360, which is the special order for this afternoon.

"I am a submissive son of the Roman Catholic Church," said the Emperor: "I believe beforehand all that it teaches, and in spite of all the bad theology with which I always promised myself to bow my head like an infant as soon as the Church has spoken. Washington, February 20.—The first sig-nal manifestation of displeasure at the Po-land report on the floor of the House occurland report on the floor of the House occurred to-day, when Mr. Wood, of New York, rose to offer his resolution providing that the testimony taken before that Committee be referred to the Judiciary Committee, with directions to report articles of impeschment against Schuyler Colfax, if warranted by the evidence. An effort was immediately made evidence. An effort was immediately made on the Radical side to stifle the resolution, and prevent Mr. Wood from getting it before the House. This made the issue whether the House would decide to consider the resolution at this time. All the Democrats rose promptly to second the demand for the yeas and nays, and the vote was taken amid the deepest interest and excitement. All the Democrats who were present voted for the consideration of the resolution, and nearly all the Republicans the other way. Butler was the first prominent Republican who voted aye. He was followed by Farnsworth and Job Stevenson. Much sensation and disgust was occasioned when Bingh am, Dawes, Garfield and other Credit Mobilier Congressmen who were in the same boat Congressmen who were in the same boat with Colfax had the hardihood to vote on a question in which they had the deepest personal interest. Of course they all voted to shut out the resolution. The result was very close—ayes 106, noes 109. But it was soon palpable that the Republicans were not

The excitement to-day was only a foretaste of what may be expected on Tuesday next. It is certain that an honest and earnest effort will then be made to expel these corrupt leaders, and it is admitted by Republicans that they will be censured, as the very least that Congress can do. A very astute remark upon the-bribery subject is made by a paominent Republican official. He says that Mr. Blaine, being innocent of the Credit Mobilier charge, led off last fall with a positive denial; and that Dawes, Garfield, Wilson and the rest must have supposed that Blaine was in the thing as well as themselves, and in his denial was merely playing a bluff game, so they follows the speaker, thinking that the bluff game was a smart thing for all of them to do.

These solemn denials imposed upon Mr. These solemn denials imposed upon Mr. Blaine, who, supposing them to be truthful and sincere, offered at the beginning of the session the unlucky resolution of investiga-tion which has brought so many of his friends to grief. It was thus a mutual misunderstanding, but very natural on the Speaker's part.

Indictments, Etc. NEW YORK, February 21.—The seventh annual dinner of the Harvard Club takes place at Delmonico's to-night. President Everett, H. W. Chapin, Parke Godwin and G. W. Curtis are expected to read addresses.

Tolona, February 21—The trial of John R. Owens, conductor, and Andy Thompson and Thomas Tyrell, brakesmen, in the empley of the Illinois Central Railroad, charged with having unlawfully made an attempt to force J. W. Rush, a farmer, out of a railway carriage, came up yesterday before Justice Hildreth. Owens only appeared. Rush testified that he paid legal three cents fare, and that the money was accepted, but that on nearing the station before reaching his destination Owens and two others attempted forpibly to remove him. He was bruised on the side and otherwise hurt. His wife was with him and so he paid full fare and was allowed to go on. Two other witnesses testified to the assault, and defendant was fined $15 and costs. Appeal was entered at once. There is great excitement among the farmers over this matter.

Have you heard of the manner in which ertain notorious defamers manage their certain notorious defamers manage their blackmailing operations? They prepare an article, which they pretend is an expose of the shameful conduct of some prominent or well-to-do citizen; put it in type; take a proof, and send it by a messenger to the individual named, with the assurance that it will be published in the next issue of their Weekly, unless he be willing to pay the sum named for its suppression. Wealthy merchants and bankers, and distinguished clergymen, are commonly selected as intended victims. The exposes, as may be imagined, consist in details of private profilgacy, or of loose moral relations hitherto (of course) unsuspected. The parties in ques-imagined, consist in details of private pronigacy, or of loose moral relations hitherto (of course) unsuspected. The parties in question know, as a rule, that they are outrageously defamed, that there is not a particle of foundation for the charges; and yet they shrink from the idea of the circulation of such stories, lest, indeed, their reputation suffer thereby. Lacking moral courage, they not infrequently give themselves into the hands of the petticoated Ishmeelites by acceding to their infamous demands, and fasten the yoke upon their necks forever.

All men, it may be mildly intimated, are not wholly immaculate, whatever their fame.
Consequently some of those to whom the Broad-street women address themselves have (unknown to the black-mailers) been guilty of peccadilloes; and, alarmed at their threats, they try to compound financially for their sins. Woodhull and Claffin's best policy is to assail prosperous citizens of unblemished reputation. If they were to confine their attacks to mere men of the world, the latter might regard their menaces with contempt,

Their most promising game generally is clergymen, with whom, it is said, they have been quite successful. They failed with Henry Ward Beecher, and soon after, it is reported, they sent one of their printed slips to Rev. Henry W. Bellows, for his monetary approval. Bellows was set down in the stereotyped fashion as a wolt in sheep's clothing, as a pious profligate, as a sacerdotal sinner, etc. Everybody is aware that Bellows is not that sort of man, and moreover is capable of an exalted degree of indignation. Running his eye over the clear typography, his face flushed with righteous wrath. He informed the messenger of his opinion of those vile women, adding, if they published any such thing in regard to him that he would make them smart for it. He then advised the carrier to leave the house instanter on pain of being kicked out of doors, and and flatly tell them to go to the devil. er on pain of being kicked out of doors, and the carrier left. Bellows has regretted ever since that he showed so much amiability. He belongs to the church militant, and seems to be the right sort of clergyman to deal with Woodhull and Claffin, and black-mallers generally. mailers generally.

The New York World says: A faro-dealer in this city about four years ago was compelled to relinquish his profession by a patralysis of his right foreinger. The nerve cell (in the spinal column) which had supplied the joint had died from overwork, and the muscles of the finger gradually passed away through disuse—atrophied, the doctors call it. The dead cell in the spinal marrow in some way, by contact or sympathy, destroyed its neighbor, which controlled the same finger on the left hand. The atrophy extended over both hands, up the arms. to the chest shoulders and neck. At the present the first of the reserved is some discovered, and the chest shoulders and neck. They were on houses, under barns, in vacant lots, and on doorsteps. I heard thousands of them, but being near sighted, only caughts glimpse, of one big yellow rescal, and he was not making any disturbance then." The Fashion in Prayer.

[Correspondence Louisville Courier-Journal.] The Tennessee Senate says, in effect, "we are especially a white man's government; we are all of a color in the Senate, hence other than white prayer is superfluous right-eousness." It seems Messrs. Revels et al. (colored), having been invited to open the House on "the shady side" (supposed to be on the side where the Hon. Mr. Kelly sits). extended their ministrations to the Senate, which has but one side to it. The members couldn't see any need of "colored prayer," and got uneasy. Finally Mr. McCall started the ball. This Mr. Coulter amended by abolishing prayer entirely. Not wishing to discriminate against the colored article, and thus put a premium on the Caucasian wo members concurred with him, but these could not out-vote twenty-three. It may be that Messrs. Revels et al. will take the hint, and give way exclusively to the white minisers, but so far there is no resolution looking positively to that end; and it must be ex-ceedingly annoying to sit for ten or fifteen minutes every morning in a cold dread of being prayed at without any sort of regard to "race, color or previous condition." It is certainly wearing on the "constitution."

The Electric Spark Professor O. N. Rood, of Columbia College, by recent investigations, has proved that if an induction coil be set in action while atby recent investigations, has proved that if an induction coil be set in action while attached to a Leyden jar, the latter will usually be discharged a number of times, giving often twenty or thirty consecutive sparks. But they follow each other so rapidly as to present the appearance of a single spark only, as all these acts are really comprised in an interval of time less than about one fiftieth of a second. The duration of each of these individual sparks was found by him to be nearly instantaneous; that is, they lasted only during intervals of from one twenty-thonsandth, up to two millionths of a second, according to the circumstances. These last discharges were again subjected to an analysis, and found to consist of a brilliant component, lasting in some cases only forty billionths of a second or about long enough to allow a ray of light to travel over thirteen yards. This is a quantity twenty-five times smaller than has ever before been obtained in connection with electrical phenomena. Yet in this inconceivably short interval of time, perfectly distinct vision was found practicable. [Scribner's for March.

A lady friend of mine was much beset a few days ago by her cook for permission to attand the funeral of some relative. The res argusts for bade her leaving just at that time, but, to compensate her for the deprivation, her mistress said: "Rose, I really feel very sorry for you, but you shall lose nothing by staying at home. I promise that you shall go to the first party that is given by any of your friends, and stay all night long." Rose, tossing her head, replied: "Law! Miss Susan how kin you talk like dat? You know! don't set no vally on parties. Forty parties couldn't pay me for de sight of one corp!" She saw the "corp." A Southern correspondent sends the fol-

By this system it is claimed that it is entirely feasible, to telegraph and receive in clear, distinct characters, fifteen hundred words per minute between Washington and New York, and that by the use of a certain kind of any or the state of the stat and that by the use of a certain kind of auto-matic repeater, the message can be sent any number of thousands of miles at the rate of six hundred words per minute. THE soft note of the shot-gun is taken up by the South wind that passes over Arkansas, carrying the news to Hiram of continued trouble in the fair land of the Minstrel and Brindle-tail. The logic of buck-shot is a permanent feature in the political discussion of that devil-ridden commonwealth. Victim after victim is sent to his last account, and if the argument is continued for a year or two longer. Kilkenny cat history will repeat itself, and the broad acres of Arkansas will be open to settlement by a class of agriculturists who would rather raise corn and cotton than hair.

THE Sentinel speaks of a recent meeting in Springfield, Illinois, presided over by Governor Palmer, as "a movement to res "urrect the Liberal party." The word "resurrect" is inapt and ill chosen. The Liberal party, or rather the principles and needs upon which it was founded, has no need of a resurrection. Recent developments have made it stronger than ever, and demonstrated beyond doubt the necessity of the reconstruction and reforma tion of political affairs. Under one name or another the opposition to the party in power will take shape in due time, and will give a good account of the Credit Mobilier and other rascalities.

The Needful Thing.

The Journal upon the Credit Mobilier report is as unsatisfactory as the report itself. If the Journal would take its own advice to the Congressmen, it would see that it is disappointing the party it represents and the people at large irrespective of party. Congressmen were told to take a recess and circulate among their constituents before sanctioning any report, or using any whitewash. Let the Journal editors get off their tripods a little while.

The effort of the report and of its apologizer here is to draw fine distinctions between the position of Brooks and Amer and the rest of the afflicted members There is in truth no such distinction The unbiased mass will not recognize any such distinction. In offenses of this grade, all are principals at the bar of public opinion. There can be no punishment of one kind for one offender and another kind for another offender where all are in intent and fact equally guilty. The fact that some were more shrewd than others and earlier made provisions to escape danger is in nowise to their credit. Guilt is aggravated by cowardice. and such the friends of these exculpated members call their chief offense. We hear it often said, and with satisfaction that is unfeigned, by Republicans, that it is true their party has been found to have bad men in it, but it is the party that is determined to punish them. Such men, and they are many, read with anger and indignation the quibbling defenses of Congressional corruption. They do not believe in technical pleadings, in speculative pleas, in emotional insanity in murders, and the like, and no more in the fine-drawn reasoning that says a husband. man may be innocently bribed by a guilty briber. It will not do, they say. Such reasoning is of the same kind that succeeded last campaign and can never succeed again. They are not proud of a success so gained. General Grant was re-elected because the great Republican party believed he and those about him had been maligned. That party did not intend and can can not be made to endorse official corruption. If the truth had been known, then there would have been a different phase to the campaign. General Grant might have been elected, but it would have been upon a platform condemning in unqualified terms the Credit Mobilier business and all engaged in it, from Brooks to Henry Wilson. Grant with all his personal popularity could not have carried such a load as the convicted members of his party. It it may take. If they are overborne now they will not be deceived again. No man can be found with character broad enough to gain their support again-support of him means support of such men as the Investigating Committees have unearthed. The truth is here, and we beg of all men willing to screen here and punish there, to heed it. [From the Kansas City Times, 15th.] There is a peculiar people located on the southwestern frontier of Kansas—real, genuine roughs—men from all portions of the world, borne westward upon the ever ad-vancing wave of civilization. Men of cool, daring enterprise; men of lawless, reckless lives and murderous disposition. The scenes of blood and murder that were once so common at Ellsworth and Sheridan, when the Kansas Pacific Railway was being built, are now being enacted upon the Atchison, To peka and Santa Fe Railway, at its extrem southwestern terminus. The class of people who follow immediately in the wake of the track builders are a cosmopolitan class, a medley made up of roughs, rowdies, gam-medley made up of roughs, rowdies, gamblers, speculators, saloon keepers, Jews and founders of towns, all sharp, gritty, "git-up-and-git" sort of people, who care for nothing except the almighty dollar.

This advance guard of Western civilization, which is closely followed by the hardy, honest settles, is now at Dodge City and Sergeant, two small towns recently located near the Arkansas river, and near the extreme southern boundary of Kansas. Late information from Sergeant furnishes the following particulars of a series of shooting and murder a scrapes which read more like the stories of mining life in California and Nevada than frontier life in the State of Kansas:

A few days ago a gang of desperadoes gathered at Sergeant, having removed there from Dodge City as soon as the railroad track reached the former town. They did not appear to have any particular business to occupear to have any particular susiness to occu-py their time except card playing, and to make night hideous by firing off pistol shots Two of this gang, named Sam Wright and one McClellan, a few nights ago went into the store of one Jesse Williams, a quiet, honthe store of one Jesse Williams, a quiet, non-est sort of citizen, and proceeded to smash things generally, shooting at Williams and driving him out of the store. Having torn things up and gutted the store, they started over to a saloon kept by Chris Gilson, and found that redoubtable individual snugly en-sconced between a pair of Government blank-ter in his hunk in a corner of his thick can vass tent. They placed their revolvers to Chris' head and ordered him to roll out of bed and give up his money. But Chris was not to be flustrated in this manner. He got coolly out of bed and offered the ruffians the hos pitalities of his bar, which they accepted, and finally became good natured and left and many became good natured and left him in peace. After they had left, Chris Gilson prepared for them in case they returned, which they did about four o'clock in the morning. They caught Chris napping and effected an entrance to his saloon, caught an old man there and robbed him of his money, after helping themselves again to whisky They determined to close their night's spre

They determined to close their night's spree by shooting off the top of Gilson's head.

"Big Jack," the other desperado, on witnessing the fate or Wright, started to run away. But Gilson was too quick for him. Turning his gun upon the retreating ruffian, he poured a two-cunce load of shot into him, bringing him down.

McClellen, on hearing the firing, and finding that two of his gang had already fallen, determined to "wipe out" Gilson, and with that intention started forth with a Henry rifle, duly loaded and primed, determined to try his hand. But Gilson was on the alert for danger; standing in his tent, he immediately loaded his gun, and waited. McClellen was just entering the tent, expecting to take dilson by surprise, when the latter emptied a load of buck-shot into him. McClellen then turned and started to run, but the salloon-keeper was determined to leave no part then turned and started to run, but the sa-loon-keeper was determined to leave no part of his deadly work undone, followed up the wounded man and shot him again, this time killing him instantly.

Caldwell—A Bungling Briber.
[George Alfred in Chic. Trib.]

Caldwell came up to the Senate by the good, broad, shameless road which Carney and Pomeroy had made. They had walked the pave until any timorous nymph could venture to face it; the first step is half the journey, but twelve years of Pomeroy might have made all Kansas Caldwellian.

The present accession "on the town" was gristly, little, and with no naturally immoral constitution. Nature did not contribute to his longevity those burly hips and shoulders, that back of the neck, and perfect flatness of foot, which she gives to her legitimate jobber in politics. He was scrawny, and the color of his hair was like the leaves of the nubbinpine in winter,—brittle and undecidedly red. One of our mechanics who has been employed in Boston this winter, returned home on Saturday, but was refused admittance to the house by his wife until he had stood in a woodshed an hour with a hunk of camphor gum in his pocket. She had heard of the small-pox and was bound to quarantine him, and she did.

A Pittsfield man who has a shrew for a wife, will not leave her because of the scandal, and will not accept a divorce because he believes it wrong. For a man of such delicacy of feeling and honorable instincts there is only one way of relief. He can put her up at a rafile.

a retireo ciergyman sends an account of a little affair that happened in his place. It appears that there was a young woman, a fine-spirited girl, engaged at a washtub, op-posite an open door. Just behind her was a fine-spirited girl, engaged at a washtub, opposite an open door. Just behind her was a young man, as generally the case, and in the yard was an old buck that was allowed the freedom of the premises, which is not always the case, we are giad to say. Well, this old buck came to the door and looked in, and the young man, going behind the young woman, pointed his finger straight at the buck, and the old fellow, recognizing at once the pressing character of this mute invitation, put down his head and dashed forward, and the miserable man stepped to one side and fled, and the young woman, unconscious of the arrangements, received the awful shock without warning, and passed over the tub, and the air for an instant appeared to be full of slippers and wet clothes, and soap, and hot water and suds. And the next minute that goat came flying out of the door at a dreadful speed, bald the whole length of his spine, and with a wild look in his eye, And for an hour afterward he stood back of the barn, scratching his chin and trying to recall all the circumstances in the unfortunate affair.

The Los Angeles Express says that a genuine mermaid is now on exhibition in that place, having been caught in the Pacific waters a few weeks since, and embalmed by a physician of San Diego. It is thus described: "The eyes, in large sockets, were pricked to let out the water in the embalming process. The mouth is very broad, with twenty-eight curved and singular shaped teeth. The nose is a combination of the Roman and the snub. The brow is heavily indented with heavy brain lobes; long and broed ears adorn the queer-looking head, and short wooley hair tovers the head and the sides of the face. The cerebellum and Adam's apple are very prominent. The arms are long and terminate in long claws, consisting of the faces and a thumb with the snarpest of mails. There are eleven ribs extending around the body and meeting at the brasst. Here the fishy portion of the thing begins. It is covered with reales, the spine having the dorsal fin, and the fish continuing in the usual development to the tip of the tail.

English Country Laborers' Homes.

An attempt is being made in England to improve the character of the houses, or rather huts, in which the agricultural laborers live. In the discussion arising in consequence, The Builder says: Certain public speakers, seeking to discredit and oppose the endeavors now being made to improve the condition of our agricultural laborers, have spoken of the admirable manner in which they are lodged. To correct these misrepresentations, it then proceeds to draw a pioture of the facts of the case, and among other instances gives the following illustra-

The Revivaliat

Dr. Holland, in the March installment of his powerful story, "Arthur Bonnicastle," in Scribner, photographs the revivalist so vividly that it will be at once recognized as a true picture, whether it be named Bedlow. knapp or Hammond:

Anapp or Hammond:

At length he paused, and said: "I suppose that as a man old enough to be father of all these young people I ought to say frankly what I feel in regard to this subject. I do not believe it is right for me to shut my mouth tight upon my convictions. My own measure of faith is small. I wish to God it were larger, and I am encouraged to believe that it is slowly strengthening. I am perfectly aware that I lack peace in the exact proportion that I lack faith; and so does every man, no matter how much he may boast. Faith is the natural food of the soul—the only natural and healthy attiso does every man, no matter how much he may boast. Faith is the natural food of the soul—the only natural and healthy attitude of the soul. I would go through anything to win it, but such men as Grimshaw and Bedlow can not help me. They simply distress and disgust me. Their whole conception of Christianity is cramped and mean and their methods of operation are unwise and unworthy. I know how Mr. Grimshaw feels: he knows that revivals are in progress in the other churches, and sees that his own congregation is attracted to their meetings. He finds it impossible to keep the tide from retiring from his church, and feels the necessity of doing something extraordinary to make it one of the centers and receivers of the new influence. He has been at work the new influence. He has been at work faithfully, in his way, for years, and desires to see the harvest which he has been trying rear gathered in. So he sends for sedlow. Now I know all about these Bedlow revivals. They come when he comes, and they go when he goes. His mustard seed sprouts at once, and grows into a great tree, which withers and dies as soon as he ceases to breathe upon it. I never knew an ceases to breathe upon it. I never knew an instance in which a church that had been raised out of the mire by his influence did not sink back into a deeper indifference after he had left it, and that by a process which is just as natural as it is inevitable. An artificial excitement is an artificial exhaustion. He breaks up and ruins processes of religious education that otherwise would have gone on to perfection. He has one process for the imbruted, the ignorant, the vicious, the stoimbruted, the ignorant, the vicious, the sto-lid, the sensitive, the delicate, the weak and the strong, the old and the young. I know, it is said that the spirit of God is with him, and I hope it is; but one poor man like him does not monopolize the spirit of God, I hope; nor does that spirit refuse to stay where he is not. No, it is Bedlow—it's all Bedlow; and the fact that a revival got up under his influence ceases when he retires, proves that it is all Bedlow, and accounts for for the miserable show of permanently good proves that it is all bediew, and account for the miserable show of permanently good had undergone division, and was separated into two portions which were gradually receding from each other, and at the time of its disappearance they were about 157,000 miles apart.

On the next reappearance, in 1852, the space between the two portions had increased to 1,250,000 miles. The parts were of nearly equal brilliancy and moved side by side, the interval gradually increasing until they disappeared.

Though carefully searched for in 1859 and 1866, the comet failed to make its appearance; but Mr. Hind expected that it would make its nearest approach to the earth in the latter part of 1872, and its positions for successive nights were calculated and foretold to assist in its detection, but with the same want of success as on previous occasions.

The comet having disappeared, it is found by the directors of the observatories at Vienna and Copenhagen that its orbit is marked by a considerable meteor stream, and it becomes a matter of the greatest interest to determine the relations between the comet and this meteor stream.—[Scribner's for March.

Lost His Confidence. The Terre Haute Express gives Engineer Morgan, of the Vandalia, a handsome record, but nevertheless says if there is a spotted cow or a petted pony along the line, it will come miles out of the way just to get knocked into "smithereens" by his engine. Morgan had great confidence in the butting qualities of his "masheen" until last winter, when he took a tilt at an old-fashioned sled loaded with saw loge, which had "stalled" on the track just around a curve near Plainfield. It never was exactly clear in his mind what did happen for a few seconds thereafter, and 'tis said that on returning to saneness he found himself vigorously pulling at the firmlyfastened end of a rail in the fence corner, and ejaculating, "D-n her, she won't fre-

The Street Railway Company. The Street Railway Company has entered upon a new existence and is disposed to be more efficient in the future, as evidenced by the following published card:

The managers of the Street Railway Company have entered upon an earrest effort to render the public more efficient and satisfactory service, and are now taking all the steps necessary to accomplish that result the present season.

They are at the same time endeavoring to cut off abuses which for some time have been a source of serious loss to the company. A careful investigation shows that in one way or another a large amount of fares earned by the company never gets into the treasury, and of course to that extent the ability of the company to make needed improvements is lessened.

It is notorious that some persons take from one to half a dozen children on the cars and put but one fare in the box, and often grown persons wilfully ride without paying fare at all. Examples will be made of the latter class in due season by prosecutions under the law. Much of the trouble heretofore has grown out of the failure of the drivers to enforce the rule that all persons (except children in arms) must put their fare in the box on first entering the car. This is an old rule of the company, and its violation is a violation of law. It is a source of regret to violation of law. It is a source of regret to the managers that any driver should be harsh or offensive in enforcing it, but its enforcement is essential to the success of the company, as it can not subject honest passengers to loss or inconvenience, it is hoped they will cheerfully comply. It is the sincere wish of the managers (as well as to their interest) to render good service and satisfy the reasonable expectations of the public.

THE WEEKLY NEWS

FOR 1873.

The year 1873, following as it does an important Presidential felection, will be of unusual interest, and every man owes it to himself and his country to keep thoroughly acquainted with the progress of current events. Some purchasers who bought last season at $500 are reselling at $700. Our present price is $600, but in a few months we shall advance to $700. There have been more houses built in Spann & Co.'s Woodlawn since it was put upon the market, than in any other addition in the city.

pointed, and Trouble Expected. nator Wadge yesterday introduced a res plution in the Senate demanding a commit ee of investigation, because Colonel Ray 00 had been raised by the liquor men to detor voting against it was liable to be accused of having received part of the fund. At the time of introduction it was considered a mere dodge to defeat the bill, and was afterwards made a special order for this forenoon. Had the emergency arisen, the grave and reverend Seignors yesterday would a little trouble, and Col. Ray would have bubbled over with enthusiasm, or "insanity" as Jason Brown terms it, or "wildness," accord-have been treated to a genuine sensation, for the temperance men were fairly sighing for ing to Dr. Thompson's theory, had he been permitted to rise right there and remark upon what he had reason to know. Probably the Senate at that time, as a body, were unaware that one of its members was offered one THOUSAND DOLLARS IF HE WOULD BEMAIN AWAY FROM THE CHAMBER WHEN THE BILL CAME UP-8 proposition spurned with honest indignation. At half-past ten this forenoon the Senator from Lake, who is credited with being an nonest and conscientious opposer of the bill, noved that the resolutions of inquiry be taken up and passed. The Senator from Fulton desired a postponement until Tuesday next. Dr. Thompson was willing to see the thing indefinitely postponed, as he, good soul, imagined it a fling at him, but Senator Wadge persisted, and declared the investigation must be had as rumors were circulating that the Senate dare not do it, and any attempt to postpone would be considered a sign of weakness. A vote was first taken on the postponement, on which Messrs. Beardsley, Beeson, Bunyan, Carnahan, Daggy, Bird, Brown, Chapman, Dittemore, Friedley of Scott, Hough, Miller, Oliver, Ringo and Thompson, voted in the affrom Professor Collett that somebody was dreading this business, all the Senators named changed their vote except the first dependent.

Death by Laudanum

George L. M. Rooker, residing corner of California and Michigan streets, and brother of the Deputy County Clerk, took laudanum yesterday afternoon and died before medical assistance could be summoned. The deceased was a painter by trade, a man of many good qualities, but inclined to dissipated habits For several days previous he was under the influence of liquor, and yesterday morning remained at home, instead of going to work It was the opinion of his wife that he did not intend suicide, and took the laudanum because of a severe attack of headache; but in a conversation with his brother Wednesday last, he talked about suicide and thought it strange that none of the family had ever died in that manner; and from this it is inferred by some that the act was intentional. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from an accidental overdose of lauda-

We announced in The News of Tuesday last, the death of Mr. R. G. Goldsborough. brother of Mr. R. H. Goldsborough, late of the Mirror. That brief notice told the sad story of a young man who came to our city a few months ago buoyant with youthful hopes and ambition to achieve success in the busy his patient industry, intelligence and high character had gained the confidence and esteem of his employer and associates, and seemed already on the highway to the realization of his hopes, when stricken to the earth by the fell destroyer.

Mr. Goldsborough was a member of a large and influential family in Maryland, and leaves a large pircle of relatives and friends to mourn his death.

Happy, No Name for it.

Col. Ray is undoubtedly the happiest men in the city, owing to the passage of the Temperance Bill yesterday, an accomplishment for which he has labored, and fought, and argued, and given the powers of his energetic nature for many years past. There is also much satisfaction apparent on the countenances of Abbett, Falkenberg, and a host of others who have troubled the waters of intemperance and brought forth beneficial results. But above all, there's many a happy woman heart beating hopefully in the city and State to-day, as she thinks at last there is a glimmer of reason in legislative men and they have for once acted their part.

The following letter, this day received by me of our Banks from a leading banking house in the East, discloses an omission not very creditable to the city or the officers whose duty it is to look after such matters, and not at all likely to add to the value and standing of our security:

Sherod Whitman, an old colored man who lived by doing chores, and until a few weeks past slept in the cellar of the Metropolitan theater, died yesterday in the rear of Henry Slusher's business room on West Washington steet, where he had been given quarters for charity's sake. There was nothing peculiar in his death, save that it was unexpected, as the prime cause was old age and exposure, and if the Coroner holds an inquest it will be just so much expense for nought.
